Lee and Suzanne Rowser were born and raised in Utah. Lee was born Aug. 1, in Salt Lake City. His family moved to Fillmore when he was 12; he then graduated from Millard High School. He enrolled in Southern Utah State College at Cedar City, where he received his B.S. degree in Accounting. It was while attending college that he met Suzanne Sorensen. They were married June 26, 1968 in the Manti Temple.

Suzanne was born April 20, in Delta. She graduated from Delta High School.

Following Lee's graduation from college, he began working as controller for Doty-Dayton Productions, a movie company that filmed and distributed such movies as: Where The Red Fern Grows and Seven Alone. At this time Lee, Suzanne, and their first two sons, Brent and Brian, moved to California.

They remained in California for 6½ years. Brad and Brandon were born during this time.

In 1981, the opportunity came which enabled them to move back to Utah. Lee began working as an investment counselor in Bountiful. Here their fifth son, Bryce, was born. They lived in Bountiful for a year before moving to Heber where Lee is currently employed with Comworld Productions.

Lee's hobbies include hunting, fishing, and flying (he currently holds a commercial pilots license).

Suzanne enjoys reading, sewing, needlework, and playing the piano.
